FLEXIBLE MONITORING SYSTEM TO SHAPE POLICIES

1. Title

VISTA college: Language support at the workplace at Vidar (NL)

2. DDSS Gap Addressed

Weak trackings of outcomes – L10

3. Description of the Reskilling Lab

The adult education provider in the South of The Netherlands developed an ongoing flexible monitoring system for the communities in cooperation with Artéduc BV. Their monitoring program measures the outcome of the learners based on the possible outcomes of the social domain. This can be social inclusion, welfare, labour market position, health, finances, upraising and many more. Based on the needs of the policy makers the monitoring can be changed each year.

4. Why is this a Good Practice?

Based on the results the adult education provider can show the contribution of their work to different subdomains of the social domain. As a result, policy makers can show the impact of their policy and can ensure future funding for adult education. Besides, it is possible to cooperate with other fields, like re-integration, health and poverty, due to the fact that the monitoring shows the surplus value of adult education in these fields.

5. Transferability

The SAVE-monitor is flexible and adaptable and can be used in several regions based on their needs, policies and framework of accountability.
