2. DDSS Gap Addressed

Lack of learner-centred pedagogy – L9

3. Description of the Reskilling Lab

At Wasbeer & Pauw migrants get the possibility to follow a personal learning route to upscale their skills on different levels. Besides, learning the basic skills they will be guided and coached to find a job in near future. All migrants will get workshops combined with practical lessons. Besides, group learning they will be supported by an own mentor. It is a specific mentoring program in which they can ask personal and practical questions but also questions concerning their learning process.

4. Why is this a Good Practice?

Due to their newly developed methodology called ‘Sprint’ each individual can get an own personalised learning route. This learning program is tailor-made, easily accessible and practice-oriented. The mentors are qualified coaches who will guide the migrants with every needed step and they also use the local networks to connect the migrants to companies and other organisations. This approach is learner-centred and the starting-point is the learner him- or herself and based on their needs the support will be realised.

5. Transferability

The program is easily accessible with a user-friendly basis and can be used in different settings in different regions. The methodology behind it has been based on the learner-centred learning didactical approach and therefore fits easily in adult education programs.
